Associated Press
SHANGHAI, April 13—One hundred Chinese were killed and 250 wounded in fighting resulting from further raids on the native population of the area last afternoon by General Chiang Kai-Shek's troops, engaged in routing out the Reds. The casualties were mostly among the Chinese who were being shot. The shooting was plainly heard in the international settlement, causing considerable excitement.

The general strike, called by the Red Chinese in protest against the raids which began yesterday, has been broken. The strike has delayed a number of Chinese-owned steamers.

Attack Y.M.C.A. Man
SHANGHAI, April 13—Chinese associates of the Young Men's Christian Association in the city of Chungking and Ichang are reported to have been arrested and beaten by members of the Red Chinese labor union.

Police officials here have received partial confirmation in a dispatch from Changsha saying that several secretaries there were seized and are still missing. The local Y.M.C.A. has sent an investigator. The raids are said to have seized the Y.M.C.A. building in Changsha, converting it to their own use.

HANKOW, April 13.—The United States consul here has protested to Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, against the confiscation by the Cantonese political organization of Young Men's Christian association.

SHANGHAI, April 12.—The Cantonese troops apparently are evacuating Chinkiang, on the Yangtze

Most of the Cantonese officials have left Chinkiang and the Cantonese flag has been hauled down from the customs house.

Customs Bureau to Handle Smuggling Across Border

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Full responsibility for stopping smuggling over the Detroit and Cleveland fronts of the Canadian boundary territory—regarded as the prinprincipal sea through which liquor comes from the dominion—was placed today in the hands of the customs bureau. Heretofore, prohibition authorities controlled the border.

A "Bad" Deficit

A deficit of thirty-seven million pounds has to be added to the list of economic by-products of the British industrial depression and commercial stagnation, both aided and abetted by the coal strike and the general strike.

Sources from which the British tax-payer can extract consolation seem to be limited to one; namely, the fact that he wasn't looking for any consolation in taxation and shrewdly suspected that an increase was due to arrive. Which is precisely what he is getting.

A Permanent Source of Wealth

Fish caught in Alberta lakes last year were sold for three-quarters of a million dollars. Adding those caught for bait use, the total value of the season's catch might run to a million. The lakes of the province make, and always have made, an important contribution to the food supply of its people, particularly in the central and northern sections. They are now bringing a large sum of money every year from outside consumers of Alberta fish, and will continue to do so indefinitely if the catch is kept within the limits of the yearly increase.

Better "Forget" the P. G. E.
The Provincial Government will probably get along better trying to sell the E. D. and B. C. system to the National if they do not try that road up with the Pacific and Great East. The E. D. and B. C. system has a known value as a traffic producer, which will increase with years and settlement. The P. G. and E. is a road whose value the National management had better be determined for themselves without reference to the former lines.

There is no reason why the selling price of the Alberta system should be depressed in an effort to make B. C.'s white elephant saleable. And that is rather more than likely what will happen if the National management is confronted with a proposition that would compromise the ends of an uncompleted line to the coast and that is a case of buying both railways or neither.

Filing the Claims

Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy and Japan have presented identical notes at Peking and also at Canton and Shanghai demanding punishment for the authors of outrages committed against foreigners, payment of damages, and apologies.

If China had a Government, the representations would have been made at the established and recognized seat of authority, leaving it to the Chinese Government to do the investigating, punishing, paying and apologizing. The identity and whereabouts of the national authority, if any, being a matter of conjecture, the demands are broadcasted to all parties who may be supposed to be concerned or in position to take action.

The notes do not contain an ultimatum. They mean that the powers have no intention of making war upon China and any part of it. They might, if necessary, blockade some ports or take other economic measures, to compel attention to their demands. To Japan, Chinese people to the horrors of war on account of the crimes of a political faction is something they have not the remotest notion of doing.

Substantially what has been done is to serve notice on China that these crimes must be punished and paid for. That even immediate action will be demanded is not surprising; now that the surviving foreigners are nearly all inside the safety zones. What will likely happen is nothing at all in the way of enforcement proceedings until the powers have settled their domestic embroglio and set up some sort of authority which can speak and act for the nation.

What About Doing Some Paving?

If there ever was a time when the high desirability of paved streets was apparent in Edmonton, that has surely been during the last few weeks. As yet nothing has been done toward launching any paving projects, anything to be done in that direction it is time to get about it, for the season is at hand when the work should be under way. For many years street improvement in Edmonton had been in a state of suspense. The paving laid in former years had been going to pieces. At a not very recent date the city is liable to be confronted with the necessity of replacing considerable stretches of worn-out pavement and also with a keen demand for new paving.

Would it not be well to forestall that contingency by starting a moderate paving program, planned to cover a number of years, and to overtake by systematic construction some of the time of the city's budget? There would be less danger of a large demand for new paving just when the city finds it necessary to replace some of the existing paving, or, at least, to forestall that contingency by starting a moderate paving program, planned to cover a number of years, and to overtake by systematic construction some of the time of the city's budget?

Under the charter the city council is given power to inaugurate street improvements without waiting for petitions from the taxpayers affected. It is quite in line with human nature that tax-payers who will not petition for paving would not petition against the improvement of their street if council proposed it. The city council might well take the responsibility of giving a lead in this matter by announcing the intention to pave certain of the streets where the need is most obvious. That at least would show if it is not possible to resume, on a modest scale and in a systematic way, the process of converting some of the periodical quagmires into permanent and usable roadways.

Unsympathetic

By EDGAR A. GUYER

He was happier when poor
So he said
When he wasn't quite so sure
Of his brother's life

And he whispered low to me
With a sigh:
"Although I've grown to be Sad and old."

"It was far more fun to need
Than to own,
I was happier, indeed,
When unknown."

"You may truly pity me
And my plight,
I'm as troubled as can be
By day and night."

But I found it hard to be Very grim,
And the love I hoped to see
Wouldn't come.

"If your spirit, as you say
Is so tired,
Why not give your soul away?"
I replied.

"Be a poor man to the end,
You can't avoid it,
I've no sympathy to spend
On the rich."

Medicine and Life

By DR. FRANK CHANE

Few people realize how important advancement in the study that pertains to conservation of life has been made since 1900.

Before 1900, said Dr. Harrison E. Lowe, the doctors had not heard of insulin or salvarsan. Lethal photographic illustrations of newspapers and books were unknown.

In many cities there were still horse-drawn street cars. The conventional life, if it existed at all, was a cruel novelty.

Gravelled gasoline was unknown. "Coolidge" cars, pharmaceuticals and many other things made from that black, sticky mass were not made in America.

Security against disease and death have been greatly increased since 1900.

In 1880 the average span of life in New York City was 40 years. In 1925 it was 55 or 56 years, a gain of about 15 years in less than a half century.

In 20 years the infant mortality rate has been cut 60 per cent.

The installation of excellent water systems has eliminated the common cause of sickness and death from typhoid.

Altogether the results obtained by the chemist, his laboratory have had profound effect upon life.

TEEN-AGES WOMAN'S REALM CLUBS

DOROTHY DIX

"If You Would Be Popular With Your Married Children, Don't Be a Mother-in-Law at All; Be a Real Mother to Them," Advises Dorothy Dix

Being a mother-in-law is the hardest job an earth next to being a daughter-in-law. It is a very efficiency test that will help her to make a success of it.

Don't be a mother-in-law at all. Open your arms to the young man and woman who come live with you. Take them to your heart instead of giving them the cold shoulder. Make them feel that they are loved and that you are not a mother-in-law at all.

Especially don't make me poor little girl feel that you look upon her as an effort and designing mix who has somehow managed to make your husband and innocent son into marriage.

Make your in-laws realize from the start that you are going to be friends with them, that you are not going to criticize them, and that you are going to make the same sort of allowance for all their faults as you would for your own children.

Second, don't go to live with your children unless you are willing to go to the poorhouse. Don't go to live with them because they feel it is their duty to ask you, or because you are lonely, or because you feel that you can't bear to be separated from your dear old mother or father. No young couple wants a third party in their new home. They want to be by themselves, and that is natural and right. It is what you wanted yourself when you were a bride, so don't begrudge it to your in-laws.

A mother-in-law in a household is just as dangerous as a charge of dynamite under the doormat. Occasionally she is harmless, but nine times out of ten she blows up and scatters everything to Kingdom Come. Statistics show that the mother-in-law breaks up more marriages than all other causes combined, so don't take a chance on wrecking your children's happiness.

Be sure you will be a million times happier in your own home, even if it is no more than one room, where you can do exactly as you please and have your own independence, than you will be as a hanger-on in your children's home. And believe me, you can be a lot more welcome with people who don't want you than you ever can be by yourself.

Third, if circumstances compel you to live with your in-laws, make it as easy on them as you can. Don't give them overmuch of your money. Don't be always under foot. Don't make them dress long trips. Don't go to summer or winter resorts. Make visits if you can, but don't stay in your own room part of the time and give your children and their friends and have a chance to have a little private conversation without your listening in.

Every young couple who love each other want to be alone together. They want to exchange confidence that are sacred and secret. They want to go off on little trips alone, and the chief reason they feel it is burdensome to have mother live with them is because she hasn't enough sense to realize this. Because she wants to be eternally with them she forgets that they don't want to have her, like the old woman of the sea, forever on their backs.

Fourth, don't pick on your in-laws. The favorite indoor sport of a lot of mother-in-laws is criticizing the poor, frail, faulty human beings their sons and daughters have married, and pointing out their weaknesses to their wives and husband.

It's mother who first opens John's eyes to the fact, which he would never have discovered himself, that Beatrice's potatoes too thick and are to too many briny parties. It's mother who implants in Mary's and a suspicion of Tom's alibi about having to work downtown at night, and who calls her attention to how much money he wastes on cigarettes that might be spent on buying curtains.

Inasmuch as your children are married, try to make them satisfied with the bargain they have made instead of fostering discontent in

USES OF EXTRA HAIR

Some women dislike the idea of wearing transformations to the switch and yet there are times when the use of extra hair is very desirable. In fact there are at least two cases in which it is necessary to wear extra hair in order to have a becoming coiffure.

Many girls and women are struggling with the problem of the coiffure of their hair that is being, but is not being allowed to grow. Hair that is neither long enough to do up nor short enough to wear as a bob presents many serious difficulties to the woman who wears it.

This extra hair, may, of course, be discarded after one's own hair has grown long enough to wear as a bob.

Co-operative Marketing

OTAWA, April 12.—Mr. Murray MacLaren (Conservative, St. John's) visited in the city today, to discuss the co-operative marketing of agricultural products with the department of agriculture and the department of commerce.

He brought the question up before the committee on co-operative marketing, which is now studying the problem of co-operative marketing of agricultural products.

Mr. MacLaren, minister of agriculture, said that the department was already performing a service of this nature and that some time in the future a department would be formed to look after subjects relating to co-operative marketing and other forms of marketing farm products.

Champs Were at Their Best
—St. Louis Fought
Hard

By KEV MCCONNELL

In one of the finest basketball games ever played at the arena, Edmonton Commercial Graduates put up the greatest fight of their careers when they defeated the St. Louis "Undertakers" last night in the first game of the two-game series for the International Basketball Championship. The final score which does not hurt the visitors in the least but which adds to the greatness of the World's Champions was 32-12.

A 20 point margin in any many game of this kind is one which will take a lot of beating. There was, however, something holding back the visitors last night. They fought right from the drop of the hat, but they could not penetrate into the territory of the home team as they did in their previous games with the same success that was the Grads.

They Were Great
Combination of the kind that only the Commercial Graduates have been able to show in their games here was dated up in size and power by the locals last night and they close to 3,000 fans simply gave over their individual "cheer" on the night for the Grads.

There exists little reason for some to expect a berth in the first division. Others are more optimistic. A few face doubly hard tasks because of a good finish by their clubs last season.

Canadian Press Cable
LONDON, April 12.—What the first day's play in the professional billiards championship match of 1,000 points between Tommy Reece and Melbourne Inman finished at Thurston's Hall last night the latter had reduced his opponent's lead of 555 points which stood at the end of the first interval to 375 and was still in play.

Reduces Lead
Continuing last night, Reece was only able to make two shots. He brought the break to 1,131 with a score of three, but gave way to Inman when he failed at a very difficult cushion stroke. Inman showed much improvement over his play of the afternoon and in reducing Inman's lead gave a masterly exhibition.

The scores at the adjournment were: Reece, 2,355; Inman, 2,182 (unbeaten).

New Stroke
During the afternoon play, Reece evaded a new stroke which was named "the pendulum shot." He created it when he jammed the ball in the right top pocket and evaded the rule against more than 25 ball-to-ball contacts by finely skimming the balls after playing off the cushion.
